

Subependymal giant cell astrocytomas:

Occurs in the lateral ventricles of the brain, usually in association with a genetic condition called tuberous sclerosis, and often causes obstructive hydrocephalus—a condition where the natural flow of cerebrospinal fluid is hampered.